Summary

UNCLASSIFIED / NON CLASSIFIÉ

Subject

Context

- The Digital Enablement (DE) Team at TBS is currently working on the Open and Accessible Digital Workspace (OADW), the next iteration of the GCTools.
- The OADW is an ecosystem of applications, that work together to offer the tools and services required for GC employees to be productive and collaborate with others, within and outside the GC.
- Each application can be used on its own, allowing users to choose the apps that they need to get their work done, based on their individual needs.
- While DE has been working on the OADW, the GC has purchased licences for Microsoft O365, to be rolled-out across GC departments to offer federal public servants a suite of productivity and collaboration tools.
- Work is currently underway to better understand the scope and roll out of Microsoft O365 across the enterprise, as well as to determine how it will affect the work of the OADW.

Problem

Across the multitude of digital tools and services available to federal public servants (OADW and O365), there is currently no common space where users can go to and get a high level overview of the activities, easy access to important links and information, in one central location, personalized based on who they are and the apps they use.

Solution

A landing page (hub) that brings all the user's apps, activity feed and other relevant content together, in one central location.

Analysis

Assumptions

OADW

- The Open and Accessible Digital Workspace (OADW) will be available to GC employees as well as to members of the public (2 types of users - external and GC employee)
- When members of the public are invited, they get access to the OADW on a global scale (public view, unclassified)
- OADW applications are Web apps, not native apps.

O365

- Members of the public cannot create an account with O365 - they need to be invited to join either Teams, SharePoint or OneDrive.
- Microsoft O365 will use the B-2-B hub to connect departmental tenants, allowing the ability for departments to open up their applications to other GC departments.
- In O365, SharePoint and OneDrive are the only apps that can be accessed without being logged in.
- Microsoft does not allow for linking of accounts. While it can use third party providers authentication services, B2B hub does not allow for the linking of user accounts.

OADW Hub

- The Hub will serve as an entry point (link) to GCintranet and other key GC services and apps (for GC-employees only). It will not show content from these services and apps, or allow for interaction with the content.
- There will be two (2) levels of content:
 1. External (viewable by the public for non-GC employees)
 2. GC-wide (viewable to GC employees)
- The Hub is hosted in the Cloud, not GC-network.
- The OADW Hub will not use the OADW Global Navigation (a common navigation menu that will be applied to all OADW applications).
- The Hub is not meant to replace the GCintranet or departmental intranets.
- Push communications on the Hub will be related to OADW-specific content only.
- The Hub will not host communications related to other initiatives, such as GCintranet, Canada.ca, departmental sites, etc.

Dependencies

- Authentication systems are in place
 1. GCaccount - to login the user in the OADW
 2. SSC active directory system, which will be feeding into MS Azure's Active Directory.

Outstanding questions

- O365 is on a Protected B network, but is the application certified to Protected B?
- Do crisis communications need to be included as part of the Hub? If so, which audience should have access to the crisis communications (public, GC-only)?

- Calendar / tasks

The main area features a dark-themed dashboard. On the left, a profile picture of a person with the name "Emma" and the text "Welcome Emma!". Below this, a message says "Busy day today! You have:" followed by two icons: a calendar icon with "3 meetings" and an envelope icon with "7 new emails".

On the right, a message says "Cheer up! It is almost Friday!" above a calendar for May 2019. The calendar highlights the date "16" (Friday) with a blue box. Below the calendar, a section titled "Today's agenda:" lists three items:

- 9:30am - Hub content meeting
- 11:30am - Sprint review
- 2:00pm - Sprint planning

At the bottom of the dashboard, there are links for "About" and "Terms and conditions".
