Summary

UNCLASSIFIED / NON CLASSIFIÉ

Subject

Problem

- The OADW is an ecosystem of applications, that work together to offer the tools and services required for GC employees to be productive and collaborate with other within and outside the GC.
- Each applications can be used on its own, allowing users to choose the apps that they need to get their work done, based on their individual needs.
- Across the multitude of digital tools and services available to federal public servants, there is currently no common space where users can go to and get a high level overview of the activities, easy access to important links and information, in one central location, personalized based on who they are and the apps they use.
- Users of the OADW need a place to land after login in.

Solution

A landing page (hub) that brings all the user's apps, files, activity feed and other relevant content together, in one central location.

Analys

Assumptions

- The Digital Workspace will be available to GC employees as well as to members of the public (2 types of users - external and GC employee)
- Members of the public cannot create an account with O365 - they need to be invited to join either Teams, SharePoint or OneDrive.
- When members of the public are invited, they get access to the digital workspace on a global scale (public view unclassified)
- The Digital Workspace Portal will not use the OADW Global Navigation
- O365 has a GC-wide instance.
- There will be three (3) levels of content
- External (viewable by the public for non-GC employees)
- GC-wide (viewable to GC employees)
- Departmental (viewable to GC employees within a specific department)
- In O365, SharePoint and OneDrive are the only apps that can be accessed without being logged in.
- The Hub is hosted in the Cloud, not GC-network.
- OADW applications are Web apps, not native apps.
- The Hub is not meant to replace the GCintranet or departmental intranets.
- The Hub will serve as an entry point (link) to GCintranet and other key GC services and apps (for GC-employees only). It will not show content from these services and apps, or allow for interaction with the content.
- Push communications on the Hub will be related to OADW-specific content only. The Hub will not host communications related to other initiatives, such as GCintranet, Canada.ca, departmental sites, etc.

Outstanding questions

- O365 is on a Protected B network, but is the application certified to Protected B?
- Should crisis communications be included as part of the Hub? If so, which audience should have access to the crisis communications (public, GC-only)?
- Does the hub need to include GC-wide (incl. GCintranet) and public communications (similar to what is included on the GCintranet or Canada.ca features?)
- If so, how do we avoid duplication? Who is responsible to maintaining that content?
- Reduces space for other more personalized content in the Hub.
- Are we looking at including content recommendations in the Hub?
- Does OO365 handle recommendations? Or can it leverage a recommendation engine?
- OADW could potentially partner to include a recommendation engine. Is there appetite for this?
- Does the Hub need to include department-specific content?
- TBD what type of content can be shown on the Hub.
- Not all departments have intranets or the same level/type of info.
- Who would be responsible to managing that content?
